Crestron RoomView® Express 6.3 Enhances Emergency Preparedness, Simplifies Campus-Wide Support

RoomView Express 6.3 Provides Broadcast Image Messaging to Streamline Emergency Preparedness and Remote Help Desk Support for College Campuses Worldwide

Crestron today announced the release of RoomView™ Express 6.3 Remote Help Desk and Resource Management software. The newest version of the popular RoomView Express platform enables AV/IT managers and administrators to instantly broadcast image-based emergency messages and text-based alerts to displays across campus. Featuring a combination of customizable messaging, storage and distribution capabilities, RoomView Express 6.3 enhances and simplifies emergency preparedness in schools, across college campuses and any other commercial application where emergency planning is critical.

To ensure optimal levels of preparedness, messages with specific images - exit route maps for instance - can be created and pre-loaded in advance, ready to be broadcast on the fly so officials don't have to make campus-wide announcements in the heat of chaos. Messages and instructions will automatically "over take" the entire screen so broadcasts are seen by everyone and informing occupants where to go in chaotic or panic situations. Customized messages and images can be projected to displays in any room, a group of rooms, entire wings, or a whole building, and emergency procedures can be reviewed, evaluated and perfected before a critical situation arises.

"This flexible broadcast messaging capability lets school officials manage emergency situations in the most efficient and timely manner possible, while increasing the safety of all citizens on campus," said Vincent Bruno, Crestron Director of Marketing.

RoomView Express is built into your favorite RoomView Connected™ projectors from popular manufacturers including Epson, Dell, Mitsubishi, BenQ, Optoma, Acer and Viewsonic. And installation couldn't be easier. Simply connect to the LAN via the projector's integrated Ethernet port, download the free RoomView Express management software and directly monitor, manage & control all projectors on the network, without a control system or any programming.

Designed to provide more effective technical support and emergency broadcast messaging across a school, district or college campus, RoomView Express gives professional AV and IT managers the ability to remotely monitor, manage and control AV resources in every room in real time, all from a centralized location.

RoomView Express 6.3 now supports 21 foreign languages, providing help desk managers across the globe with an intuitive single-platform solution to remotely monitor, manage and control campus-wide AV resources from any Crestron touch screen or computer running Windows.
