

Guanghua School of Management Equipped with Crestron Control

Guanghua School of Management, Peking University is one of the best business schools in China. As a leading business school in China, Guanghua School commits to provide the local and international business community with cutting-edge management knowledge and services. With Peking University's heritage of innovation and social responsibility, the school serves the nation with aspiration and dedication.

Guanghua School is within the campus of Peking University, which locates in the northwest of Beijing City, close to the 4th Ring. The new building of Guanghua School has 30,000 square meters of floor space for teaching, research and office. To provide better facilities for teaching and learning, the school has chosen Crestron control system to be installed in its lecture hall and classrooms.

In the Alibaba lecture hall and 13 small and medium classrooms, AV2 and MP2E processors are the core of the entire integrated solution with every audio and video command easily accessible through touchpanel control. The processors are used to select and control all the AV resources; such as computers, projectors, projection screens, documents cameras, DVD and CD players, through TPS-4000 tilt touchpanels. In each classroom, about 60 computer signals are connected to a projector. Professors could switch any one of these computer signals to the projector by a single touch on the touchpanel, Also, the volume of every audio source can be adjusted and various audio channels can be routed.

Crestron touchpanel really offers a user friendly interface to access and control all AV equipments.

Before a lesson starts, the projection screen is opened, projector and computer are turned on, the right settings are selected and the media is displayed automatically with a touch of a touchpanel. After the lesson, the whole AV system is shutted down by simply pressing on the touchpanel. Crestron control system helps to ease the difficulty of the control over all AV gears significantly.

Guanghua School of Management has devoted to advance management knowledge and develop business leaders for China and the global society. Through its educational initiatives, Guanghua seeks to enable its graduates to develop and implement responsible and innovative successful business solutions. Crestron is delighted to provide better facilities for Guanghua School to educate business leaders who make a difference to the world.